STORM AT SEA.

Great Damage Done on the Atlantic Coast by Storm.

High Tides and Waves the Worst of Recent Years.

Low Beaches Near New York Heavy Sufferers.

An Army Officer Reports on the Recent Ute Scare.

Storm on the Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, September 10.—The hydrographic office has prepared a statement to the effect that tidal waves along the coast of New Jersey and Long Island for the past few days are caused by a hurricane coming up the coast from the West Indies. Disasters at sea are feared. Necessary for telegraphic communication with Bermuda and Nassau that warning to shipping may be given is wanted out. This is the hurricane season and grave fears of disasters to shipping are entertained.

NEW YORK, September 10.—Incoming vessels yesterday were visited for news of the great storm at sea, which has been raging during the past few days. That it has been the worst of recent years is made evident by the high tides and storm waves which have done such great damage along the coast. In this city cellars and first floors of buildings along the water front were all flooded this morning. Ferry boats are having difficulty in getting into their slips. Reports of great damage done by the storm at high tide last night all along the coast are coming in, and as the tide this morning is higher than last night it is evident an enormous amount of property has been destroyed. Along the New Jersey low beaches are submerged and railroad tracks injured. Thousands of spectators watched the surf, which was the wildest and highest known in years. Atlantic City is completely cut off from the mainland. Many bathing houses were ground up into kindling wood. Several pavilions were lifted bodily from their pilings and destroyed. Reports from Coney Island say this the worst ever known there. All night long the waves dashed over the breakwater at Manhattan and Brighton beaches with a tremendous roar. The marine railway between the two places was entirely swept away this morning. Not a vestige is left of the Esplanade in front of the Manhattan hotel, and the tide flows in and out of the basement of the building. The causeway is swept away and communication between the east and west ends is cut off.

In this city some piers are entirely covered by the tide. Some really active feet above high water have their decks licked by the angry waves. The bay and rivers are exceedingly turbulent owing to high winds. Sailors say it is the greatest flood in twenty five years.

NEW YORK, September 10.—It is believed the gales are right in the track of the cyclone. It is feared some of them including the City of New York and Teutonic, have suffered. Telegraphic communication to Sandy Hook is cut off. Outside the harbor it is so rough and the weather so thick that boats dare not venture out. Word comes from Coney Island that the tide is higher this morning than last night. The Manhattan Beach and Oriental hotels are flooded to the doors and their occupants are unable to leave. The West End hotel is entirely submerged. The water is now over to Sheepshead Bay. The beach at Manhattan has been already washed away. Persons still there are badly frightened.

A Coney Island special says the Monmouth bathing pavilion belonging to Manhattan beach was beaten down by thundering waves. The old marine railway was crushed away early to day and taken with an awful crash over the new marine railway, fully 300 feet inland, carrying the latter away; badly damaging and smashing cars like kindling wood. The old Brighton beach bathing pavilion followed with a deafening crash and drifted with herculean force against the new bath house, tearing part of that away. The Brighton Beach hotel is surrounded by over two feet of water. One hundred feet of the lawn in front of the hotel has been eaten away since last night. All will be gone before night. The Brighton Beach railroad is submerged. No trains are running.

PHILADELPHIA, September 10.—The worst storm in five years prevails on the Delaware breakwater. The tide is very high. The Italian bark Salvator and the schooner Charles Stickney are ashore.

A severe wind storm accompanied by rain prevailed in this city and vicinity all day. Fire alarm, police, telegraph and telephone wires are prostrated all over the city, and telegraph lines throughout the state are reported to be in a very bad shape. The damaging storm which prevailed along the Atlantic coast since Sunday still continues, and reports received here indicate the damage to railroad lines entering Atlantic City, Cape May, Ocean City and other coast resorts is very great.

Only a few early trains succeeded in getting through. The meadows near Atlantic City are covered with water, and the tracks are washed away in places. Early reports of the situation were made to day by the railroad officials, then the storm carried away telegraph poles and wires and all communication was cut off. Water in the old Camden and Atlantic excursion house at Atlantic City is four or five feet high. Latest reports were that the heavy north east wind was growing heavier, and there was no sign of abatement.

Ocean City is almost entirely under water, and the Beach road, which is flooded in every high tide, is believed to be an entire wreck. On the Angleren branch it was reported three railroad cars turned over on their sides and that the passengers climbed out of the windows unhurt but very disconsolate as they were compelled to make themselves as comfortable as possible on the sides of the cars. This report has not been confirmed but is believed to be true.

Grave fears are entertained for property at Atlantic City as well as for the lives of the residents, for there would be no way of escape should the condition become more threatening. When a railroad train cannot get out of the city it is not likely anything else could except a boat, and there are not boats enough there to help one tenth of the people. The last report received by Camden and Atlantic railroad officials was to the effect that the water was rising. Atlantic City is on low ground and partly on a sea of ground and grave apprehensions are felt for the safety of the people.

Up to a late hour to night complete reports by telegraph had not been had with any point on the coast between Delaware Breakwater and Atlantic City, Lewes Del. the wind has been blowing a gale all day and rain to night is unabated. The tide was the highest since 62. Telegraphic communication with Brigantine was destroyed about 4 o'clock this morning. Both wooden piers have been destroyed. Eleven schooners are ashore.

A special from Cape May to the Inquirer says: The heavy tide of last night washed over the beach drive east of the Stockton hotel and filled the meadows on each side of the city. The wind which increased in force through the night made the tide of this morning the highest for thirteen years. The greatest apprehensions are felt concerning the tide which will reach its highest point to night. The cottage occupied by the widow of the late Phil Kearney and the cottages about it are surrounded by water a foot deep. On Poverty Beach on which is situated the Cold Spring inlet life saving station, waves went right across it and three times lifted the government station off the under pinning, and also completely undermined the Cape May and Sewell's Point railroad. Heavy seas on the meadows made an inlet, as was expected in the beach just east of the life saving station, and now a heavy volume of water is sinking it deeper every hour. Waves broke over the veranda flooring of the Mineral Springs hotel at Madison avenue and swept directly into the bay.

The meadow east of the city is a sea for miles up the country. Back of the beach the city is nearly all under water, and many of the cottagers in the lower part of town had to abandon the first floor and take to the second. At Cape May point Coulton hall is undermined, and the sea has cut into the whole front of the place from 50 to 100 feet. Heavy seas have wrecked the pier where steamers land. The only mode of travel from Cape May City to the point is by carriages or wagons through two feet or so of water. Every yacht in the sound at the different sailing points is shored and several damaged.

PHILADELPHIA, September 10.—From Bay Head to Garnegs City the damage both by wind and waves has been unprecedented. On the coast between Manasquan park and Berkley the railroad has been washed away so that no trains can be run. At noon to day a telegraph operator had to travel knee-deep in water from the railroad station to reach Morey's grocery store, and people are leaving as fast as they can pack up and get away. The handsome Berkley Arms at Berkley has been damaged and a portion of the roof carried away. People there are alarmed for their safety. Beach Haven, Barnegat, Long Beach City, Harvey Cedars and other points on Long Beach are inundated and the railroad washed away in many places.

The Ute Scare.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo., September 10.—Lieutenant Samuel A. Smoke of the U. S. army, stationed at Fort Logan, arrived in Glenwood Springs last night from a trip up to Routt county to investigate the recent Indian scare. He reports that but few Indians were to be found and these in small parties, three, five and seven respectively. They claimed to be after stray horses, but it is pretty certain that they were hunting parties. The petition recently sent in by the residents of Routt county was against the issuing of permits by the Indian agent allowing the Utes to leave their reservations. The reports of armed parties were caused by fusillades of shooting a party of "tenderfeet" who were going up the county hunting. Lieutenant Smoke will await orders at Glenwood Springs.

The Indian Outlook.

DENVER, September 10.—On the opening of the district court to day, the state and county officials and state contractors recently indicted for conspiracy to defraud the state, appeared before Judge Allen to answer to the charges against them. Sheriff Weber filed an affidavit asking for an immediate trial. Secretary Rice did not plead but gave his personal recognizance in the sum of $1,000, in each of the four counts, for his appearance to morrow, when he will be arraigned. The other defendants were continued until to morrow.

Trouble in New Mexico.

DENVER, September 10.—The Republican's Santa Fe special says: In the state constitutional convention a majority refused to permit the incorporation of a woman's suffrage clause in the article relating to elective franchise, whereupon the handful favoring the right of women to vote undertook to delay final action on the article. Those in favor of withholding the suffrage from all persons who shall engage in prize fighting also made a vigorous contest to incorporate their views in the article, but the report of the committee as amended was adopted without those additions. The committees on legislative affairs, corporations, taxation and bill of rights also made lengthy reports, which were ordered to come up in regular order. The afternoon was consumed in acting upon the report of the executive affairs committee.

Asphyxiated.

ANNAPOLIS, September 10.—Estimates of the loss by the recent fire range from $5,000,000 to $5,000,000 francs. The fire still smoulders over a large area, which is surrounded by a cordon of troops. Firemen are working day and night pouring floods of water upon the ruins. Ten persons who ventured too near the ruins have met with accidents due to the occasional explosion of cartridges. Corvillian, proprietor of the cartridge factory, is charged with homicide by imprudence. His defense is that the fire originated in the petroleum sheds, and caused the explosion in the cartridge factory.

Base Ball.

At Boston—Boston 2, Chicago 1, thirteen innings.

At Chicago—Games at New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn to-day were postponed on account of rain.

At Washington—Washington 7, Indianapolis 6.

At Baltimore—Baltimore 3, Cincinnati 6.

At Columbus—Columbus 3, Kansas City 8.

Governor Cooper at Glenwood.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo., September 10.—Governor Cooper, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Attorney General Jones and State Engineer Maxwell, arrived here in the car Mountaineer over the Colorado Midland at midnight. They will go to New Castle in the morning. The party will decide about the Grand river bridge at this point to morrow.

SUNSET COX DEAD.

The Famous Statesman's End Comes Peacefully.

His Ruling Passion Irrepressible Even on the Deathbed.

Jack the Ripper Again Horrifies the People of London.

The Murder Described as the Worst of the Whole Series.

Cox's Last Hour.

NEW YORK, September 10.—Cox's physicians had a consultation this morning and found him worse, but there was no reason to fear immediate death, unless heart failure occurs. His condition is critical, however.

NEW YORK, September 10.—A message was sent at 10:30 from the house, saying Cox was sinking fast.

Congressman "Sunset" Cox died at 8:33 this evening. The end was quiet, and the dying man breathed his last as peacefully as if falling into a light sleep. Mrs. Cox, who has been scarcely away from the bedside for the past two days and nights, held his left hand, while his old friend, Douglass Taylor, held the other. He had been conscious all day until about a quarter of an hour before the end. Mr. Cox's last conversation was about the four territories whose statehood he hoped to father. He mentioned New Mexico and Arizona and said something about making a great effort in their behalf at the coming session.

In the afternoon, while Dr. Lockwood was talking to him, Cox made some witty remark which completely upset the doctor's dignity. Late in the afternoon telegrams were sent to Cox's three sisters, two of whom live in Zanesville, Ohio, and the other in St. Louis. Cox's nephew, who is superintendent of the Smithsonian institute, was also telegraphed before. Dr. Lockwood said the immediate cause of death was heart failure, and its cause personality. Telegrams were sent to the colleagues of the house of representatives, Leedom, and Speaker Carlisle.

A Ripper Murder.

LONDON, September 10.—At 5:30 this morning the police found the body of a fallen woman lying at the corner of the railway arch on Cable street, Whitechapel. Examination of the body showed the throat had been cut and the body mutilated. The throat was cut off and carried away. The stomach was ripped open, the intestines lying on the ground. A cordon of police instantly surrounded the spot but no arrests up to 8 a. m. had been made. Police pass the spot every fifteen minutes. Those on duty last night saw nothing suspicious. Physicians who examined the body state that in their opinion the murder and mutilation occupied nearly an hour. It is admitted the murderer carried off the head and arms in a bag. The murder is the worst of the whole series of Whitechapel murders.

The manner in which the limbs were severed from the body shows the murderer possessed surgical skill. The woman was about 30 years old. She was dissolutely and was evidently a hard drinker. The remains have been identified. Great excitement prevails in Whitechapel. Crowds surround the mortuary in which the body lies.

NOON.—Later details show there was no blood on the ground where the body was found nor on the body. From this it is evident the murder was committed in some other place and the body subsequently deposited under the railway arch. The trunk was cut and torn, and a bloody chemise was found near the body. The arms were intact but the legs were missing. It is believed the woman has been dead two days.

The Cardinal's Letter.

LONDON, September 10. Cardinal Manning's proposal, which is being considered by the council of the strike committee, is a conciliatory one to the effect that the terms which the dock [illegible] have already conceded are to go into operation on the first of November, provided the men immediately return to work. Burns at a mass meeting of strikers today asked the men whether they would accept a proposition for increase in wages to begin in November. The strikers unanimously opposed the proposition. Directors of the dock companies absolutely adhere to the terms mutually agreed to by them, in which the wages of the men are to be advanced on the first of January. Burns at to night's conference with Cardinal Manning affirmed that the attitude of the strikers was such that it would be futile to urge the November compromise.

The persistence of the strikers in [illegible] with the swelling tide of subscriptions. Home contributions are slightly falling off, but Australia continues pouring in. To-day £1,400 was received, making a total from Australia of £15,500. Church relief societies are increasing. The result is that many dock men fare better in idleness than when working. Food among the agencies of the relief is the Salvation army, which provides food for 9,000 persons daily at a nominal price.

In the meantime, in spite of the strikers, the packet companies are gradually replenishing their working forces. Congestion of the river trade is becoming relieved by wharfingers generally acceding to the men's terms. A number of vessels are leaving docks and going to wharves to unload. The wharves present their wonted busy aspect prior to the strike. Addressing a second meeting of strikers, Burns again assailed American workmen for failure to contribute money in aid of the strikers.

Asphalt Pavements.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 10.—Death from consumption here last night ended the tragic career of Charles Joseph Savory, a member of the Legion of Honor and at one time one of the leading politicians of France.

The deceased came to Canada in 1886 accompanied by the wife of his executioner. [illegible] was 21 years of age. He remained politics when quite young. He was finally appointed deputy minister of justice. He was a clever scholarly man and won fame in the domain of literature. He was a director of the Bank of Lyons and when that institution collapsed he fled to America to avoid arrest. Subsequently he was sentenced to five years imprisonment. There are still standing against him judgments of similar import.

Before leaving Paris Savory fell in love with the handsome wife of his secretary who once surprised the couple in a cafe and received a bullet which lodged in his pocketbook. Savory was accompanied to Canada by the woman who survives him. His first wife is still living in ignorance. Savory was regarded as the author of the recent Riel revolt in the Canadian northwest, his writings helping to stir up the feelings of the French Canadians.

The Labor Strike.

LONDON, September 10.—A meeting of striking workmen was held in Tower hall to day. Tillet, one of the leaders, said he believed the mediation of Cardinal Manning would result in early settlement. John Burns said the workmen of America had forwarded sentiment and sympathy enough to encourage the globe, but not a cent to relieve the wants of their fellow workmen. He was ashamed of the organized workmen of America. The people of Melbourne have sent ten thousand pounds to the London strikers.

Beef Investigation.

KANSAS CITY, September 10.—The senatorial investigation committee resumed their sessions to day. S. B. Armour, head of the Armour Packing company, this city, took the stand. He had no agreement with railroads by which he got lower rates on shipments than any other firm. Witness said he was not a member of any combination whose purpose was to control either the prices of cattle or dressed meats. Territory was not divided up between the packers. All packers were in all markets. The competition was so brisk in fact that even he and his brother often cut each other in bids. Did he have knowledge of any combination Chicago, Senator Vest asked. Armour refused to answer. He said he had no connection with the Armours of Chicago anyhow.

Mr. Armour knew of no agreement between the railroads and big packers. He was sure each to all, Kern and shippers were practically on the same basis. Before the close of his testimony he reverted once more to the question of competition between packers, saying it was brisk. There was little profit in the dressed meat business.

Wyoming Politics.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., September 10.—Frank, of Crook county, in the organization council to day presented a resolution that no only be permitted to vote at school elections and be eligible to such offices.

L. Chaplin of Albany county, presented a preamble containing no reference to the Deity.

Grant, of Albany, introduced a resolution that the state debt be limited to 1 per cent. of the valuation, and county 2 per cent, no city or town to be allowed to create an indebtedness exceeding 2 per cent, except in the construction of water works, work of internal improvement to be executed by a two-thirds vote; all lands listed for taxation.

Risser, of Laramie, resolved that the state officers—[illegible] of governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary, treasurer and superintendent of public instruction at a salary of $4,000 a year, except the lieutenant governor, he to get $500 a year.

Knights of Pythias.

DENVER, September 10.—The sixth annual encampment of the Patriotic Order Knights of America of Colorado opened at Washington camp to day. A hundred delegates from various parts of the state are in attendance. Mayor London delivered an address of welcome, to which Presiding Officer Gilfillan replied. A resolution was adopted to have a street parade Thursday night. A motion was made that a committee of seven all be appointed by the chair, the motion prevailed and Charles Fielding of Camp 19, Leadville, J. P. Hedley of Camp 19, Denver, and W. E. Rud of Camp 5, Leadville, were appointed to report at the opening of the secret sessions in the afternoon. The [illegible] session was held with closed doors, but was devoted entirely to routine business.

An Old Settler Passes.

CHEYENNE, N. T., September 10.—Joel S. Ordway, aged 80, a well to do farmer, was robbed of $6500 this afternoon. Ordway had a team for [illegible] and this morning a nice looking man called on him for the alleged purpose of buying for its grain. After [illegible] talk, the stranger persuaded Mr. Ordway to drive to Cheyenne, where the old man was induced to draw $6500 from the bank to prove to the stranger his customer that he was a man and able to support his title to the farm. They then started to drive back to the farm. The usual [illegible] was made, a scuffle ensued and the usual performance went through with. Ordway was robbed to lose his money, was silenced by the sight of a revolver, and the stranger drove away.

Democratic Jubilee.

DENVER, September 10.—The regular meeting of the Trans Mississippi Democratic association was called to order here to-day by Chairman Finley. The following were present: B. D. Caldwell, Missouri Pacific; J. R. Lockwood, Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis; S. T. Boyd, Rock Island; T. W. Lee, Union Pacific; G. T. Nicholson, Santa Fe; S. K. Hooper, Denver and Rio Grande; George Ady, Denver, Texas and Fort Worth, and M. Francis, the Burlington and Missouri. Some matters relative to the publication of a rate sheet was the subject under discussion during the greater part of the day. The association will be in session the remainder of the week.

Labor Troubles.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 10.—Argument commenced in the United States circuit court to-day on the subject of jurisdiction of the federal court in the case of Deputy Marshal Nagle. Attorney General Johnson opened the argument on behalf of the state and Attorney Mills followed for the federal authority.

Strike Settled.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, September 10.—The strike at New Castle among the miners of the Grand River Coal and Coke company has been settled, the matter of wages being submitted to arbitration. Other points were conceded by the company and all the men are at work.

Assessment Work.

EVANSTON, W. T., September 10.—[illegible] Wheelwright of Tacoma, and G. C. Griffith of Spokane were placed in nomination for governor. Griffith was [illegible] first ballot. Ex-Governor Miles Sewell of Tacoma was nominated for governor by acclamation.

H. M. PITZ, Jr.
Manager of the Gazette.

The death of Hon S. S. Cox is a remarkable career. He was born at Zanesville, O., on September 30, 1824. He attended the Ohio university at Athens and afterwards graduated at Brown university in the class of 1846. He studied law, but never practiced it, but became owner and editor of the Columbus Statesman in 1853. In 1855 he was appointed secretary of the United States legation in Peru. Since then he has been almost constantly in public life. The Columbus district sent Mr. Cox to the Thirty-fifth, Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth congs. In 1865 he removed to New York and was elected to the Forty-third to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James Brooks. He retained his seat in congress until Mr Cleveland was elected to the presidency when he resigned, to accept the post of minister to Turkey. After resigning the latter position he was elected to the Forty-ninth congress to succeed Joseph Pulitzer and was re-elected to the Fiftieth congress. At the time of his death he was a member-elect of the Fifty first congress from the ninth New York district having received a plurality over McMahon the republican candidate of 10,947. In 1878 Mr. Cox was chosen speaker pro tem. of the house. His loss will be severely felt not only by his party but by the country at large.

Leon Abbett has been nominated for governor by the Democrats of New Jersey. His nomination has been for some time a foregone conclusion. The place of his name at the head of the ticket will not be a square issue on the temperance question, and it will not be uninteresting to watch the action taken by the prohibitionists of New Jersey in the coming campaign. Leon Abbett has always been the friend and champion of the saloon gang. He is to day the attorney for the New Jersey Liquor Dealers' association. He stands before the people of his state asking for their votes on a rum platform. The prohibitionists hold the balance of power and it rests with them to say whether he shall be placed in the executive office. When the last assembly was elected in New Jersey the liquor power was openly and unblushingly used. All the power of rum was thrown into the campaign to elect the democratic candidates. With the assistance of the prohibitionists the democrats secured a majority. One of the first acts of that legislature when it met at Trenton was to repeal the high license act passed by a republican legislature. That was what the rum power elected them to do; and they did it promptly, notwithstanding the vigorous protests of many of the leading and most naturally respected citizens of the state irrespective of party. Through the influence of the rum ring Leon Abbett has been nominated for governor and the issue again squarely presented. With the lesson of last year before them the prohibitionists can have no excuse for failing to grasp the opportunity to strike a telling blow at the liquor interests by uniting in the defeat of the rum candidate. If they are sincere in their desire to aid the temperance cause here is an opportunity to prove it.

A N[illegible].

To the Editor of the Gazette:

I do not mean the dust, great as the discomfort and harm it occasions are. I mean the dogs. Our city marshal is said to have killed nearly a hundred within the past few weeks. Fortune reward him and prosper him in a continuance of his beneficent work. Seriously, it is becoming in some neighborhoods a question for whom (or which) the city exists, men or dogs. For the past two hours, as I have tried to read in my library, curs large and small have been yelping in demoniacal confusion in every quarter around me. I shall soon retire for rest, but it is a question whether I shall get it. If the experiences of unnumbered previous nights are to be repeated, this yelping horror, after a short abatement, will revive and continue till nearly midnight. Presumably it will cease then a few hours, as I have said, but to hear it—but at daybreak it will start up again, driving sleep from any save a dead man's body. Is there no help for light sleepers? Must they leave town or must the dogs? Can or cannot the nuisance be repressed? CITIZEN.

A Dog Outwitted.

Post.

The other day a spaniel that had a bad habit of stealing poultry was seen approaching the house at a moderate trot with a large rooster in his mouth. The fowl seemed to be defunct and so the spaniel evidently thought, for being somewhat wearied by his exertions and the weather being warm he lay down his prey for a moment in order to rest. But the rooster was not dead in full possession of all his faculties, for no sooner did he feel himself released from the jaws of the foe that had captured him than he flapped his wings and struggled up among the branches of a convenient tree. The dog was so astounded at this miraculous event that he must have seemed to him, that he lost his presence of mind for a second or two and in that interval his booty escaped. This tale is perfectly true and I remember a very similar occurrence years ago, although I must confess it smells a good deal like the beginning of one of Arabi's Fables.

THE SWEET CLOVER.

[illegible] that is the [illegible] of [illegible] Illinois.

No one knows just how or when it came from or why it came, but a showy and sweet breathed intruder has come into the city to dispute with the lordly sunflower his long and undisputed title of squatter sovereignty to all the vacant lots and [illegible] in Colorado Springs. And the [illegible] little observers, the summers of [illegible] sweet clover [illegible] are looking upon the swift and certain destruction of the pioneer weed with [illegible]. One-third of the sections which [illegible] nothing but the gigantic sunflowers turned their backs and refused to the [illegible], and where it grew in such luxury that [illegible] which Lucy was chokeful of existence, the fragrant sweet clover has appeared and bends in delightful and sweet profusion over [illegible] Even [illegible] yellow sunflowers [illegible] the dark green foliage and feast on [illegible] the [illegible] sweet clover.

[illegible] who have examined the new plant with a good deal of interest and are sure that it is destined to become a new species of weed to some unknown and hopeful crops and that its vigorous and spreading properties are the most wonderful features of its nature. The old-fashioned sweet clover was a frail and ghostly plant, that loved the friendly shade of the groves and the honest moonlight summer nights, a character [illegible] but this new and lovely product of Colorado Springs spurns the protection of the trees and goes out boldly in the fields and meets and conquers the sunloving sunflower in his chosen grounds. As a forage plant it is perhaps one of the most remarkable that exists now for its luxuriance. In many respects it resembles the alfalfa clover, but it is stronger, heartier, and of much more rapid growth than that remarkable plant that farmers have three crops of hay a year in western territories.

It grows to the height of four or five feet, with a dense leafy foliage and a perfect bush of sweet scented blossoms. The leaf is small and juicy, of a rich dark green, very much resembling the red clover. It is so new and its habits so little understood that it is not known what its value may be as a forage plant for stock. In its present rank character stock will not eat it, but, trained by repeated clipping and cultivation, it may become one of the most valuable plants to the stockmen and farmers.

But whether it has any value or not in the development of cattle and horseflesh, it is of inestimable worth to the people of Colorado Springs. Its swift destroyer and fragrant substitute for the ubiquitous sunflower, that also furnished protection for so many sad reflections upon the city, notwithstanding enthusiastic efforts have sought to [illegible] the meek yellow crowned weed by painting it on panels and wearing it on their bosoms. It was a lovely and lovable plant so amiable that it will come right up to your doors and crowd its white head into your windows, and so determined upon having the company of its fellows that it makes a specialty with the soil that where one plant grows this year there must grow next. A year ago there was perhaps not enough of the plant in the entire city to cover half an acre, now there are hundreds of acres boldly covered with it. The odor from the acres of white flowers fills the air, and after a midsummer shower the peculiar and delicate fragrance is indescribable, and as sweet as the breath of roses.—Gazette Boy.

A Live Waiter in Jersey City.

A colored waiter in the new General Railroad depot restaurant in Jersey City saw a rattlesnake crawling along the floor near a party of ladies. He yelled "Snake!" and the ladies ran out into the car which was running. The waiter had an armful of plates. As the snake was hustling for him he dropped the dishes and ran. Two men who had been eating at the lunch counter followed him. One of the ladies who had run out told John Van Pelt, a conductor, about the snake. Van Pelt got a stick and a friend of his got another, and they went into the restaurant. Half a dozen waiters, a cook and three passengers were sitting on the lunch counter. They were tired. The snake was crawling toward the door, shaking its rattle savagely. Van Pelt and his friend made a combined attack. Van Pelt's stick was [illegible], and he speared the snake through the neck, pinning it to the floor. The other man beat the reptile to death. Then the waiters and cook and passengers came down from the counter. The snake was about two feet long. It had four rattles. How it got into the depot is a mystery. Possibly it had been shipped as freight, and had in some way escaped from confinement.—New York Sun.

Cremation in Paris.

The cremation furnaces in Père la Chaise cemetery at Paris are now in [illegible] and the municipal council of the city has, after due deliberation, resolved a decree as to the scale of charges for the incineration of the dead in cases where the system may be preferred to burial. Fifty francs is the tariff, and on the payment of this small sum gives, in addition to the use of the furnace, the right of occupying a shelf in the columbarium for ten years, the charge is not in any way excessive. Of course, the urn required to contain the ashes of a cremated person constitutes an extra, as likewise the pomp to be displayed in the action, for which latter item the sum of from twelve francs to 200 francs may be asked. For the simple burning process, however, and for a ten years' right to a shelf in the columbarium, the price of a couple of pounds is really low.—London Standard.

Horses are rife in London to the [illegible] the Prince of Wales, which is said to be a [illegible] It is also said [illegible] to keep three [illegible] per year.

Present Railroad speed and old [illegible]

The Saturday Review says:

Between London and Edinburg the greater part of the journey is done at a speed exceeding [illegible] an hour. The 105 miles between Grantham and King's Cross average [illegible] and more than 24 miles in 22 minutes [illegible] done in 46 seconds [illegible] and engineers of the Great Northern railway [illegible] as to speed [illegible] Father [illegible] the West [illegible] and [illegible] Great Western [illegible] Brunel [illegible] may succeed [illegible] miles an hour, which [illegible] be ventured on with safety.

THE NEWEST FALL STYLES

TWO YOUNG GIRLS WHO ENVY THEIR OLDER SISTERS.

Olive Harper Discourses on a Variety of Subjects Pertinent to the Season and Which Are Dear to the Hearts of Her Sex—to Readers.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Those two young girls are sadly contrasting with each other because they can't be their own big sisters. They feel abused and ill treated that the fates should have given those sisters the right to be born first, and in consequence be the oldest. My young girls, there will come some day when those big sisters will wish with all their hearts that they were you and you were they, for their case will have no cure, they can grow no younger while you can keep right on growing as much older as you want to and no one can hinder you.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS.

Yet, after all, there is small use of complaining, for neither wears bustles now. It used to be because little girls could not wear bustles that their tender young hearts ached in woe, but that troubles them no more. Slimness is at par, and a bustle in a dress of the semblance of it at once stamps the wearer as one out of style, and they are now at a discount.

The dress for young girls are just as pretty and just as stylish and have just as progressed directoire characteristics as those for older ones. These two pretty woe maidens wear good clothes. What could they desire better than they have? She of the saddest face has a redingote of light green cashmere, with velvet revers of darker shade, with buttons of the most elegant. The vest is of white surah, and the skirt has bands of velvet, and pocket lids of the same expensive material. I suppose she wanted a dress of silver moire with the sun, moon and stars on it, as her fairy tells of.

The other small woe-one has a gown of old rose cashmere, with all the trimmings and the skirt of striped material, and a cream colored armure silk vest. She is out of the part of comedy, perhaps because her own dress is so trying.

One of the big sister has an elegant gown of soft gray the sole in a delicate wood brown, with a lovely new wasp in mordore brown ladies' cloth; the edges bound with gray de sole. At the side are three bands of velvet ribbon exactly matching the shade of the cape placed vertically, thus forming a sort of panel. Tan gloves, two velvet poke, with tan colored plumes make up a costume that any lady might be forgiven for envying.

The other pretty grown sister has a redingote of heavy brocaded silk in stone colors, with silver gray flowers and with the skirt of the dress in silver gray, as are all of the accessories. The four large buttons are of finely chased silver and cost $3 apiece.

This gown is like the others in being embroidered in any of the new fall materials. The lovely, soft, pearly Henrietta and the gray bengaline form a pretty combination, while such expensive goods cannot be used. The redingote of the costume is exceptionally effective and elegant, and is quite dressy enough for any occasion where full dress is not required. When a young lady of 20 or younger is going to wear this, she would look just as pretty in it made of simple cashmere, or lustrine, but her mother or maternal sister would require the richer materials.

THEIR OLDER SISTERS.

The newest fall styles show great beauty and choice. I often wonder how such pretty goods and such reasonable ones can be made so cheaply. The old fashioned line de laine is shown in every store, the ground work being very dark rich brown or gray, dark green or blue with tiny flowers in several colors, very artistic and dainty patterns. These will be used in making up the quaint round skirted dress with postilion effect above.

The ball gowns are the fairy, fluffy things of before; ephemeral and misty, and very destructible.

OLIVE HARPER.

Thomas Albright, the well known prospector, informs The Telegraph that "grand sights have been seen on and Mount Lyell during the past few weeks. All the gulches that it has been noticed that the glacier is flowing from both sides, leaving a fine—which have been trickling in several rolls—for those weeks of years have increased so as to be noticeable in many instances. This could not be accounted for, as the heat of the sun is cooler by no more intense than it has been many times before.

Possibly the glacier may be explained by several occurrences. Within the past month singular lights and glows have been noticed along the upper side of the snow, the towering bare gleaming [illegible] ly. The glow of night [illegible] following a display of this kind smoke is noticed rising from the ice in long wisps [illegible] as if ejected by some force acting beneath. At times the wisps are sharp and sudden from a dozen or more places at the same time, accompanied by a red dust which settles on the glacier and [illegible] it in blotches of many acres.

It is believed as Mr. Albright says, that the mountain is "alive and working," and that the pent up forces within are struggling to make a vent. The glacier is about two miles in length and a mile in width. Its depth in places, judging from the profile of the mountain, which is 13,000 feet in height, must be enormous. Perhaps old Pluto has resumed operations in his laboratory and is endeavoring to throw out the great mass of ice which plugs his chimney. Lyell has been dead to all appearances for countless ages ever since the time, in the forgotten past, when, by some catastrophe, the whole continent was covered by an ice cap several thousand feet in thickness. Maybe the old hill is trying to revive itself and demonstrate to the world that it still has latent life.—Homer Indies.

An Incident in the Life of Alexander J. Hamilton.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—"Pojar! pojar!" (a fire, a fire!

"Oday on?" (where is it?)

"Lieutenskaya Tserkov, Iliz Morskavo Kanala" (the Lutheran church, near the Marine canal).

And the excited crowd tore past me at full speed, their hoarse voices and trampling feet echoing weirdly through the ghostly silence of the clear, frosty night.

The clang of the alarm bells through the still air and the signal lanterns that gleamed against the dark sky from one of the tall watch towers which abound in St. Petersburg (as in every other Russian city) were not needed to warn me that another great fire had broken out; for the red glare which rose above the snow covered roofs of the tall [illegible] houses, waxing and waning by turns like the flame of some vast lamp, told its own story. In another moment I was running as fast as I could toward the scene of action.

By the time I reached it a large crowd was gathered around the spot, and one glance showed me that the fire had already made fearful progress. The lower part of the Lutheran church, a good sized building of brick and painted yellow, standing on the bank of one of the great canals which run like veins through the whole extent of the Russian capital was completely wrapped in flames which were rolling around the wooden spire, and darting like snakes in and out of the doors and windows.

Beneath that inferno of light the gloomy canal looked like a stream of blood, and the countless upturned faces of a dense crowd, as well as the tall and ghastly figures moving to and fro in the glare of the fire, together with the thunder of hoofs and wheels, the billowy surging, the shouts and the crash of falling stones and blazing timbers, gave to the whole scene quite the effect of a battle or a battle.

This effect was suddenly and picturesquely heightened by a very unexpected incident. Unnoticed by the crowd, [illegible] of the flames had planted a ladder against the burning building, and as the rising wind whirled up the thickening smoke for one moment they could be seen on the roof, [illegible] ing in the skylight with their axes to make an opening for the nozzle of the fire [illegible] which they had dragged up along with them.

The crowd upon seeing them held their breath to watch the fate of this daring attempt. But all at once a mighty shout broke forth and the [illegible] clattering up to the spot and sprang from their [illegible] in the middle of the [illegible] space which had to clear itself of snow [illegible] as if by magic, in the very thick of the throng.

In the face of the [illegible] ing mized the tall figure, strong, harsh features and rich uniform of Gen. Trepoff, the minister of police. The second [illegible] fine looking man in the prime of life, dressed as an officer of the Imperial guard—was unmistakably the Grand Duke Nicholas, the emperor's younger brother, who held the lofty rank of commander-in-chief of the Russian army and [illegible] of the Imperial Fire brigade. The handsome face and thick grayish blonde mustache, that showed [illegible] beneath the gold laced military cap of the third man would have told any bystander (even without the profound reverence which [illegible] to him by all around) that he was no other than the czar, Alexander II of Russia.

The arrival of these distinguished spectators, and the energetic action of the Grand Duke Nicholas, who took charge at once to the front in virtue of his position as commander of the fire brigade, spurred on the firemen into fresh exertions, and they buckled to their work like heroes. The [illegible] kept encouraging the brave fellows with voice and gesture, and in doing so ventured almost [illegible] to the blazing walls than would altogether suit the taste of the police, whom I could hear making urgent remonstrances, to which the czar, in his excitement, paid no attention whatever.

And now for a [illegible] ly. Was it as if the fire would be [illegible] after all. Fortunately, the church [illegible] by itself in the middle of a broad, open space, flanked by the canal, and the [illegible] est houses being too far off to run any risk of catching fire, the main [illegible] to [illegible] and with [illegible] the burning building itself.

Presently a dull crash, three [illegible] ed, was heard within the building and then the spire it self was seen to shake and totter.

"Look out!" roared a hundred voices at once. "The tower's falling!"

There was a crash like the [illegible] of a [illegible] and a spurt of fire shot up into the very sky, while a host of sparks and pieces of burning [illegible] came pelting down upon the crowd—and a thick gust of hot, stifling smoke.

Just then I saw Gen. Trepoff and the emperor by the arm and drag him forcibly [illegible] ward, not an instant too soon for the next [illegible] at least twelve feet long, fell crashing upon the very spot where they had just been standing, flinging a shower of flaming splinters over the czar and his [illegible].

"Pardon my boldness if I tell your majesty plainly," said the general emphatically, "that your [illegible] here, and the risk to which it exposes you, can only hamper our work and distract our attention. If your majesty will be guided in the, you will withdraw at [illegible]."

The Grand Duke Nicholas [illegible] did the entreaty, and the czar reluctantly withdrew. But, although he knew it not, the day on which he had so narrowly escaped death was destined to be fatal to him after all; for on that very day, nine years later, [illegible] of a Nihilist [illegible] hurled the bomb that [illegible] his life.

A fire [illegible] though probably not of much moment occurred at the new bank building yesterday afternoon about half past three o'clock Harry Schumann, the foreman of the stonecutters employed on the block, was walking along the scaffold at the top of the building, and when immediately over the elevator shaft, he stepped on a loose board, which, giving way beneath him, precipitated him down the shaft to the second floor, where he struck on his side, and when the ambulance arrived he was found to be unconscious. Schumann was at once removed to his boarding house at No. 128 East Huerfano, and a physician was called An examination failed to show any broken bones, but the unfortunate man is suffering from severe internal injuries. At a late hour last night he had only partially recovered consciousness Schumann is a married man, and his injuries were much greater than they would have been if the boss fighter in delight.
